All About Big Ben

You've been wondering why we call this Big Ben Sale. Surely you know Big Ben the alarm clock that wakes you every morning or that you have seen advertised in all the magazines. Well, he's the fellow that is running this sale, and this is how he does it. Every day of this sale the Big Ben alarm goes off at 2 p.m., and 2:30 p.m., and between these two alarms you or anyone else can buy some one line of Goods at a price even below regular wholesale cost.

Watch Big Ben Circulars for full information.

At Least 15,000 Dollars Worth must be sold in 15 days. The time is short, hence the prices will be extremely low. This sale is something more than an ordinary sale. The reason is the necessity of reducing the stock a great deal quicker in order that we can carry out some contemplated changes in our business without delay. The time is short—quick action is what we want and must have—hence prices will be extremely low—probably the lowest you have known for years. Don't doubt, investigate the truth of this statement—don't hesitate—come quick and find out that this is the Greatest Opportunity of The Times.

At 9 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 2, we will give Cash away. $1.00 cash, will be paid to the first 6 persons above the age of 18 who enter our store when the doors are opened at 9 a.m. All we ask is that you spend the $1 here before you leave. You actually receive $1 worth of anything in the store for nothing.

Golden West Hotel Co. H. C. FORREST, MANAGER

DIDSBURY, ALTA., JULY 11th, 1913
Those who make the Golden West Hotel, Didsbury, Alta., their home, please take notice that on and after the first day of August, the meals will cost thirty-five cents (35c) instead of 25c. The reason why, it is impossible to serve the meal we do at less. As those who patronize this house are aware, we have been serving an excellent meal and prompt service for the money, but from a financial point of view we are at a loss, therefore to continue to serve our many patrons as in the past we must raise the price to 35c per meal.

Thanking those who have patronized this house under its new management and assuring one and all that we will continue to serve, as in the past, the best that money can buy, including service.

Yours Truly,
GOLDEN WEST HOTEL,

Why Clocks Stop

The reason why mantel piece clocks so often get out of order is so obvious that it is strange that attention to it has not been drawn before. A clock-maker said:

It is because mantelpieces are rarely level. If a clock meant for a mantelpiece is not placed in an exactly horizontal position it is sure to go wrong. When the clock gains or loses because of its slanting position, people regularly move the hands forward or backward, as the case may be, in order to adjust it. Eventually the clock's hands are moved about so much that the mechanism gets out of order, and the clock refuses even to tick.

Watches and travelling clocks are constructed differently from the stationary clock, and they will go in any position. That is why they are relied upon more than the ornamental mantelpiece clock.

DIMENSIONS APPAL

New York's New $6,000,000 Post Office is Modern Wonder

New York's new $6,000,000 post office building, a massive pile of pink granite five storeys in height and two blocks long, facing the rear of the Pennsylvania station, is the greatest building of its kind in the world. The curb to the topmost piece of granite is 101 feet. There are 1654,000 cubic feet of granite, 18,000 tons of steel, 7,000,000 bricks, and 200,000 square feet of glass in the building. The main corridor, corresponding in length to the outside colonnade, is a combination of buff marble, white plaster and glass, two storeys high, 29 feet wide, and 280 feet long. There are 400,000 square feet of working space within the building.

Expert Advice

Every man ought to save up enough to buy himself a good, big farm, said the thrifty citizen.

Yes, replied Farmer Cornstossel, and then do something else with the money.

Another Way

Why are you so anxious to go on the stage?

I wish to get a rich husband. Things will be dull in the theatrical business for several months. Better go into the manicure business, girlie.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infested children, and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will not injure the most delicate child, as there is nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferers whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.

The editor of a great magazine sent for a certain author who had submitted an unsolicited manuscript.

I am glad to make your acquaintance, sir, said the editor, enthusiastically. The story you sent us is perfectly splendid. But why use a nom de plume? Let us publish it over your own name and it will make you famous.

I'm not after fame, objected the author. It's money I want.

But you'll get just as much money in either case.

No, I won't. If I publish it over my own name my wife will get the money.

Aviator—Yes, it took me about six months' hard work learning to operate this aeroplane.

Miss Sweetums—And what have you got for your pains?

Aviator—Arnica.

The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. On the seat in front of her sat a little boy. The brakeman opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching. The elderly lady roused herself with a jerk and inquired hurriedly of the boy: Where are we, Bobby?

I don't know, grandma, answered the little boy.

Didn't the brakeman say something just now?

No, he just stuck his head inside the door and sneezed.

Help me with these things, Bobby! she exclaimed, she exclaimed, hurriedly. This is Oshkosh. It's where we got off.

THE SECRET OF GOOD HEALTH

Keep the Blood Rich and Pure
with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The condition of the blood makes all the difference between health and sickness. Impure blood and strong healthy nerves and muscles never go together. If the blood is thin every part of the body becomes weak. The stomach fails in strength and the appetite becomes poor. The body does not obtain enough nourishment from the food, and soon the nerves begin to complain and the person becomes irritable, despondent, worn out and nervous. For a time there may be no actual sickness, only a run-down weak condition, but there is no defence against disease and from such a condition spring disorders such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, and even paralysis itself.

People with impure, thin blood should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Every dose helps to make new, rich blood, and new blood means health and strength. They stop the progress of disease, and red cheeks, good appetite, new strength, declare the general improvement in the health. Here is an example. Miss Ellen Maude McQuade, Harrison, Ont., says: "I feel it my duty to add my voice to the many now recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For years I was a sufferer with backaches, rheumatism and nervousness. I was so bad at times that I was confined to my bed. I felt sleepy and heavy after my meals, and had flashes of light before my eyes, and a difficulty in collecting my thoughts. After using several remedies without benefit I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and used ten or twelve boxes in all. They gave me the best health I have enjoyed for years, and I have not since had the least return of the trouble."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents, a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TAGS FOR WILD BIRDS

How American Bird Banding Association Studies Migration

To extend scientific knowledge of bird habits by means of records made by students and accurate observers, the American Bird Banding Association has been organized with headquarters at the American Museum of Natural History. During the last year more than eight hundred wild birds have been banded with an aluminum ring that is adjusted loosely so as to cause no injury or inconvenience to the birds.

On the ring appears the words: Notify the American Museum, New York, and a card in the filed records of the museum gives the species of the bird, the date, the place and circumstance of banding. It is hoped by this system to learn the distance birds travel by migration, their definite routes, and information regarding their winter quarters. A long period of time is required to obtain results of value.

Concrete
is the cheapest building material

WHETHER for a silo, a milk-house, or a million bushel grain elevator, concrete is the most economical building material in use today.

Concrete never requires repairs, and the saving in repair-expense alone makes the greater economy of using concrete more apparent every day. The cost of other building materials is constantly increasing. The cost of concrete is being reduced.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy.

We have, by reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" Cement so low that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have, from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. This demand will continue to increase—as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement; by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work.

Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

There is a Canada Cement dealer in your neighborhood.

The Oil for the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

Discussing a customs difficulty, Mr. Loeb, collector of customs for the port of New York, said:

If ours weren't such a big and important country I suppose some tourist would treat us as the Yankee automobilist treated Montenegro.

This automobilist, after a wrangle with the customs officers on the Montenegro frontier, shouted:

Here, shut up the trunks! Put 'em back on the car again! I'll not go through you at all! You're no country! You're only a spot. I don't mind losing 10 or 12 minutes to go around you.

In the Spring the Blood is Thin

The body of man can be influenced in health or disease only through the medium of two channels—the blood and the nerves.

When the blood is thin and watery, as it usually is in the spring, the nerves are starved and depleted, and every organ in the human body is less capable of performing its natural functions.

The action of the heart weakens, breathing is weaker, the gastric juices of the stomach do not flow regularly, the liver, kidneys and bowels are less active, and in fact the whole body falls an easy victim to disease.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes directly to the formation of new, rich blood, and on this account is a restorative of exceptional value. You can scarcely conceive of a treatment better suited as a spring tonic to enrich the watery blood and put new vim, vigor and energy into every part of the human body.

There is no trouble from headaches, neuralgia, sleeplessness, irritability, nervousness and despondency when the nerves are properly nourished with an abundance of pure, rich blood. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most certain means of getting the blood into perfect condition.

Home Grown Strawberries

Strawberries grown in large enough quantities to supply your own household if not for market purposes can be raised in this district. This has been amply demonstrated by Mrs. H. L.
Sanderinan this year on their farm northwest of town. The sample of berries brought to us were as large and as fine a flavor as any B. C. berry that has been brought into Didsbury this season, and the plants have proven very prolific this year. It takes very little work after the plants are once started to grow these berries and it would be a great saving and also a profitable investment for us if strawberry culture was taken up. This patch contains over a thousand plants and this is the third year of growth.
It will pay anybody who is interested to go out and see how healthy and strong these plants are.

If you are a housewife you cannot reason-

Fox Business Booming

Two hundred and nineteen live foxes, ranging from black silver to red crosses, valued at $320,000, have been shipped from Edmonton to points in the provinces of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and New York and Pennsylvania since the opening of the season. The most valuable consignment, which went forward yesterday, consisted of ten pure black puppies, for which Kane Brothers of Brooklyn, N. Y., paid $30,000.
The animals were sent to Ogden, Penn.,
for propagation purposes.

Frederick M. Lee, president of the Western Fur Company, who recently shipped 34 foxes, valued at $30,000, to breeders in Prince Edward Island, announces that he will not dispose of any more animals to eastern ranchers, having decided to establish a fox farm at Tees, Alta., where 40 foxes are now domiciled. He said:

"Advices from eastern Canada are that prices of live foxes have decreased from 25 to 50 per cent. during the last 30 days. This slump is accounted for by large shipments through Edmonton from all over the northern country, between the Yukon and the province of Saskatchewan. There will be a reaction next fall when prices will be higher than they have been during the last few months.

"Fur trappers in the north are reaping a veritable harvest now, as the foxes are easily obtained by digging the pups out of the holes before they have left the nests. After this month the young foxes will leave their dams and can only be caught singly in traps.
This means fewer animals and higher prices."

Wedding Bells

A very happy event occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Eby, on Wednesday, July 23rd, when the marriage of their daughter Pearl to Joseph Arthur Welsh of Canora, Sask., was duly solemnized.
At the hour of four o'clock, the couple took their places under an arch of pink and white carnations to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, being very efficiently rendered by Mrs. Findlay. The Rev.
Mr. Armstrong spoke the words which united the two hearts for the remainder of the life's journey.

After spending a pleasant social time with the wedding guests, the bride and groom were escorted to the depot and the whole town turned out to give them a happy send off to Banff, where they will spend a short honeymoon and again return to Carstairs. From Carstairs they will journey to Canora, Sask., and take up their residence at that place where Mr. Welsh has the honored distinction of being the principal of the Canora Public School.

Mr. Welsh was formerly principal of Carstairs Public School, during which time he gained the confidence of many admiring friends, therefore he is no stranger amongst us. Thus they start life together with the best wishes of the whole community.

The company present consisted of the following: The Bride and Groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ben E. Eby, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Shantz, Mr. and Mrs. H.
Rieher, Mr. and Mrs. F. Monkman,
Mr. and Mrs. D. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs.

Shantz, Mrs. Nash, Rev. Mr. Armstrong, Miss Mabel Riest, Mr. Loyd

The presents were costly and numerous, which attests to the popularity and esteem in which the contracting parties were held by the community.—

Not only had he listened to the conversation in the smoking-room, but he had gone into Muller's bedroom and investigated the safe. The way to open it by a combination of letters would have been a mystery to a less expert thief, but as it happened he was familiar with one by the same makers on exactly the same principle and to get inside it was the work of only a few minutes. While the game of cards was proceeding down below, Jordan was noting the papers and other valuables, mostly foreign scrip, which the safe contained. He had easily laid his hands on the Transalpin documents, but he left them in their cubicle; for he had discovered something much more interesting, viz., a memorandum of the very meeting which was now going on below. In addition, there was sufficient data to satisfy his keen intelligence as to the objects of the meeting—not enough to form a legal proof but, coupled with other details with which he was acquainted, sufficient to direct his ideas into the channel of probability; and, what he suspected in the former occasion, he had come now to prove.

In any case it was necessary to run the risk, or the information he had come to obtain would be lost. So he dived under the card-table and waited the denouement, with the toy revolver held loosely in his hand.

Some explanation is now due of the extremely hazardous course Jordan was taking, and the reasons which led to its adoption.

Jemmy had told Murgatroyd just as much of the story of his former visit to Highden as he had thought expedient; not that he had any sinister intention in concealing what he had not disclosed, but simply because he did not care to expose his cards before he game was played out.

Muller brewed a storm of punch, which smelt uncommonly appetizing to the concealed listener, who sat on his pletely Cured.

Ville Jollette, Que.—"My little girl, aged four years, had so many pimples on her face, arms and legs that I did not know what to do. She lasted for a year. She commenced to scratch and this made pimples, clear, not red. She scratched so much that the blood ran and it made a red sore.

The sores were worse on her arms and legs and on her face, and they were ugly looking with the blood. I was told what to do to stop her suffering, and I used the treatment but other pimples came out all the time. I tried all sorts of remedies but the trouble grew worse all the time. It was always the same story, until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I began to apply the Cuticura Ointment on her, also hot water and Cuticura Soap. Immediately I began to see that they were curing her, and after having used a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment she was completely cured. She has just as fine a skin as before.

"My husband also used Cuticura Ointment for cracks in his hands. After three applications of the Cuticura Ointment he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. A. H. Corrier, Jan. 10, 1912.

elde, the result might have been different. But each of the three was suspicious of the other two, and in the end they left with the money which was rightfully their own. As soon as they had all gone into the outer hall, Jordan slipped from his hiding place. The rough maps and plans lay upon the small table on which they had been first placed. Jordan cast an eye over them, so as to be sure of recognizing them again. Then he slipped out into the hall and hid in a cupboard under the stairs. He had hardly taken refuge before Muller's heavy tread passed the place of his retreat.

The master of the house went into the smoking-room, leaving the door open, gathered up the papers, and went upstairs. Jordan was out in an instant. Muller was carrying a lamp in one hand, the map in the other. Jordan followed. There was plenty of shadow on the wide staircase, and it was thickly carpeted with Indian carpeting. At each corner Jordan waited until Muller had passed the angle next in front. At the top Muller took a rapid survey of the doors on the landing, to see that none of them were ajar. Having satisfied himself, he passed on to his own room, which was the furthest from the top of the stairs, and going in he closed and locked the door. Jordan sped quickly across the intervening space, and placed his ear against the keyhole. In a few seconds he heard the safe open. Then he turned and went rapidly down the stairs into the dining-room, and out through the window by which he had previously entered, closing it after him. Dropping softly to the ground, he ran rapidly across the sward until he came to the moat. Glancing up, he saw the light in the bedroom still. His errand had been successfully accomplished.

Her mother explained that the meeting would not amuse her, but she persisted in her demand, and finally her mother agreed to take her if she promised to be very quiet. She was very good throughout the greater part of the proceedings, but after listening patiently to the speeches for some time she whispered to her mother: "Mummy, this is dull. When is the cruelty going to begin."

BANISHEDTea and Coffee Finally Had to Go

The way some persons cling to tea and coffee, even after they know they are doing them harm, is a puzzle. (Tea is just as harmful because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). But it is an easy matter to give it up for good, when Postum is properly made and used instead. A girl writes:

"Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept on drinking coffee. "One day I asked her why she did not give up coffee, as a cousin of mine had done who had taken to Postum. But Mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up.

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and quickly her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relish, I asked for a taste.

"That started me on Postum and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into our house now."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular Postum (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

A Scientific Congress

Special interest attaches to next year's meeting of the Association Française pour l'Avancement des Sciences which is to be held at Havre, probably September 4th to 12th. A large number of British societies are to take part in the meeting. There are 160 British societies affiliated with the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and it has been the custom for these societies to hold a conference in London whenever the Association itself met in some far distant city—as in the case of the meetings at Winnipeg and in South Africa. (Strange to say the British Association has never met in London). Now it happens that in 1914 the British Association meets in Australia, and comparatively few members will be able to make the long and expensive journey, aside from those whose expenses are to be paid out of funds raised for this purpose in Australia. Accordingly, as Havre is comparatively near England, it has been decided to hold the conference of delegates from the affiliated societies at that place, in conjunction with the meeting of the French association. It is hoped that American scientific societies will also be represented at this joint meeting.

Milking Machines

The milking machine is becoming a recognized part of the equipment of large dairies. It has already reached the point where it compares favorably with ordinary hand milking in the item of germ content of the milk and in its effect upon the flow. There is still much room for improvement from the mechanical viewpoint especially in the matter of simplicity and expense of installation.

The success of the milking machine is closely associated with the personality of the operator. Unquestionably it takes a higher grade man to operate a milking machine successfully than to hand-milk a cow equally well. There is every reason to think that in the hands of careless operators the machinery will work injury to the cows, but the same result is too often obtained from inefficient hand-milking.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known for Catarrh. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. There was once a chap who went skating too early, and all of a sudden that afternoon loud cries for help began to echo among the bleak hills that surrounded the skating pond.

A farmer, cussing his boots before his kitchen fire, heard the shouts and yells and ran to the pond at break-neck speed. He saw a large black hole in the ice and a pale young fellow stood with chattering teeth shoulder deep in the cold water.

The farmer laid a board on the thin ice, and crawled out on it to the edge of the hole. Then extending his hand he said:

Here, come over this way, and I'll lift you out.

No, I can't swim, was the impatient reply. Throw a rope to me. Hurry up. It's cold in here.

I ain't got no rope, said the farmer, and he added angrily: What if you can't swim—you can wade, I guess. The water's only up to your shoulders.

Up to my shoulders? said the young fellow. It's eight feet if it's an inch. I'm standing on the blasted fat man who broke the ice.

I don't mean dine at my home, you know. My wife doesn't approve of—er—music hall people you know. I mean dine at my club.

At your club? said I with horrified look. Oh, no! No, thank you, my lord; I'm sorry to have to decline, but the fact is, you know, my wife doesn't—er—approve of clubmen.

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be assimilated and carried to the blood. On the other hand, the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion. In turn, the nerves are not fed on good, red blood and we see those symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not hard work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor this blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip—bronchitis—consumption. Fortify the body now with

LT.-COL. PONTON IS BEST KNOWN FOR MILITARY WORK.

Deputy Registrar of Hastings Has Been a Notable Marksman in His Day, Active in Toronto University Senate, Ontario Bar Executive, Red Cross and Numerous Other Associations.

Lt.-Col. William Nislet Ponton, one of the best-known military men of eastern Ontario, has been for more than forty years deputy registrar of the county of Hastings and comes from good old military Scottish ancestors.

Since he was a young man he has taken a deep interest in rifle shooting and has been an earnest worker on behalf of the volunteer militia of the Dominion, both by example and precept doing all in his power to encourage the force and promote its efficiency. He was a crack rifle shot himself for years and actively participated in rifle shooting contests, holding three medals and a championship cup as proof of his prowess as a marksman. He is a member of the Fifteenth Regiment. He entered that body as lieutenant in 1882 and was promoted to captain in 1884, major in 1894 and lieutenant-colonel commanding in 1895. He is acting brigadier major of the Sixth Infantry Brigade and is one of the executives of the Belleville Board of Trade, president of the Bay of Quinte District Exhibition Association and president of the Hastings Law Association, the Veterans' Association and a senator of Toronto University, besides being a very prominent Mason and deputy district grand master for Prince Edward district.

Lt.-Col. Ponton is vice-president of the local Game and Fish Protective Association, a vice-president of Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association and a vice-president for Ontario of the Canadian branch of the British Red Cross Association and one of the executives of the Ontario Bar Association.

He was born at Belleville in 1856 and was educated at Upper Canada College and Toronto University, being a medalist at the latter institution in 1877. He subsequently studied law and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1881 and has since successfully practiced in the Belleville district. In 1883 he married Miss Sanky, of County Fermanagh, Ireland.

The Australian Lyre Bird.

The Queen Victoria Lyre bird is one of the rarest Australian birds, and is a most wonderful songster and mimic, far surpassing any other in these respects. Never common, it is continually becoming scarcer on account of its peculiar habits. Almost all of its life is spent on the ground, the nests are built on or very near the ground, and to make its continued existence still more uncertain, only one egg is laid. Foxes, which were introduced into Australia to furnish amusement for the early colonists who could not give up their English ideas of sport, have practically exterminated the Lyre birds, of which there are three species.

These birds are of dull, though very beautiful plumage, the tails being especially wonderful. First discovered 115 years ago, they were thought to be birds of paradise but it was soon seen that no bird of paradise had any such peculiar tail and the Lyre bird was recognized as constituting a class by himself. Only the males have the lyre-shaped tail, and it is only fully developed when the bird is four years old.

A Big Incubator.

The largest egg incubator in the United Kingdom, one with a capacity for 3,000 eggs, is now at work on a poultry farm in Kent. The appliance is in reality a succession of incubators joined, operated and controlled by one small automatic heater or fire-pot. The cost of running the incubator is not more than 1s. 3d. a week, as only 15 pounds of anthracite coal is used each day in the fire pot. A well-known authority on poultry culture said that these mammoth incubators should prove a boon to English poultry farmers. As one man can attend satisfactorily to them the labor and capital saved are considerable.

MILITARY DISCIPLINE

Commanders' Methods of Keeping Order Differ Very Widely.

That the disciplinary methods of military commanders differ widely was shown by two British officers who died within a few days. It used to be said of Sir Frederick Carrington, whose muscular prowess was famous, that when an alleged offender was brought before him he would solemnly resolve himself into a court-martial, call for a statement from the accused, and then demand of the accused: "Did you do this?" As denials were proverbially useless, the answer was commonly, "Yes, sir." "Then take that—and that—and that!" and the combined judge and executioner would rain blow upon blow till convinced that a sufficient penalty had been inflicted.

Lord Wolseley, on the other hand, was rather scrupulous about the formal preliminaries, and always aimed to make the punishment fit the crime. One morning he delivered an address to his men on parade, warning them against carelessness of attire, especially when under the view of the civilian public. The next day he was halted by three of his own men on guard at the barrack gate, who refused to let him pass out because he was wearing only one spur. He was so delighted at their literal application of his orders that he presented them on the spot with a sovereign apiece, warning them not to spend any of it on drink. Within a few hours the trio were brought before him, under arrest for intoxication.

"If y'r hon'r 'adn't g'n' us the money," said their spokesman, frankly, "we'd 'a' been all right."

Wolseley pondered the situation a few minutes, and then answered: "You are right. I was a fool to expect anything else. You will now right about, and march in charge of this sergeant to the savings bank, where he will stand over you till you have deposited every penny in your pockets!"

Perhaps the best of all the barrack-lore clustered about Wolseley's name has to do with an order he issued during the Egyptian occupation, when he posted a guard around the harem of a local potentate. A brother officer, strolling into an adjacent garden, was halted by a sentinel: "Hi, sir; you mustn't go there, sir!"

"Don't you see who I am?" protested the officer; "I am Col. Blank of the —"

"Yes, sir, I know," interrupted the trooper, respectfully; "but they's laddies livin' in that 'ouse, an' th' horders 'm Sir Garnet is that 'e's not to be let go in there 'issell—no matter 'ow bad he wants to."

A Bird Disciplinarian.

For an example of the wisest of all made creatures in dealing with the frivolities of the weaker sex, the hornbill, an uncouth bird of Africa and India, is the most striking. The hornbill drills itself a hole into the hollow of some old tree when it is nesting time. There it builds a comfortable nest and in due course the eggs are deposited therein by its mate. When they are all in place and the necessity arises of sitting on them for the necessary weeks, the male hornbill drives its mate into the nest and proceeds to erect a wall of perfectly good masonry across the aperture to keep her there. In this wall is left one small slit. It is just large enough for the female to put her bill out through it. The male bird does not forget his responsibility and gathers food for his captive. This he brings to the nest. The captive puts her bill through the slit and the food is deposited therein. So does the master of the flock assure himself that the female of his household is not to be allowed to get careless with the eggs and possibly allow the young birds in them to come to harm. When the young ones are hatched the male tears out his masonry wall and the mother is liberated.

Hussars Once Freebooters.

Hussars were originally scarcely respectable enough to include a Prince of Wales among their numbers, for the word hussar is akin to corsair, and the first hussars were simply freebooters. As part of the regular army the hussar appeared in Hungary in 1459, when King Matthias Corvinus raised a corps of light horse under that name to fight against the Turks. The name and fame of the Hungarian hussars spread throughout Europe, and Frederick the Great was not above sending an officer to study their work. The English hussar dates from 1805, when the Seventh regiment was converted from light dragoons into hussars.—Westminster Gazette.

A Spark Making Alloy.

It is a curious fact that when 70 per cent of cerium is alloyed with 30 per cent of iron the metal thus produced possesses the remarkable property of giving off a shower of sparks when struck lightly by a steel wheel. This substance has been used for making auto lighters for gas burners, miners' acetylene lamps and cigar lighters. It has been proposed to utilize it for igniting motor headlights and even to employ it as a substitute for electric ignition in the cylinders.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Only Excuse.

"I see that somebody says many a man is a poet without knowing it." "Gee, what luck!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

OLD ENGLISH KITCHENS.

Where Not One but Two or Three Oxen Might Be Roasted.

The kitchens of olden times seem to have been of extraordinary size, judging from the investigations made by an English historical society. At Hurstmonceux, for example, there was a kitchen twenty-eight feet high, with three huge fireplaces and a bakehouse with an oven fourteen feet in diameter.

There is an old Welsh kitchen near Llandudno, dating from the fifteenth century, which has many primitive culinary contrivances, now obsolete or superseded by modern devices. Among these curious old devices may be mentioned a meatjack with a flywheel, a steel roasting stand and a fan bellows.

At Battle abbey there is a curious old kitchen containing much of interest to the antiquary, and a kitchen at St. Mary's hall, Coventry, is remarkable for the famous "knives' post," to which, it appears, refractory scullions were temporarily attached by way of punishment.

There is a medieval kitchen at Westminster abbey, although little remains by which to identify it aside from the rubble flooring, the buttery hatch and an adjoining cellar. Hampton Court palace shows its "great kitchen," with vaulted roof and sets of antlers on its walls.

Englishmen of other days fully recognized the advantages of a large kitchen. There is extant an order, dated April 10, 1206, wherein Hugh de Nevill is commanded to have the king's kitchen at Clarendon roofed with shingles and to cause two new kitchens to be erected, one at Marlborough and the other at Ludgershall, in which "to dress" the royal dinners. In this order it is stated that "it is particularly directed that each kitchen shall be provided with a furnace sufficiently large to roast two or three oxen."—Harper's Weekly.

BANK DEPOSITS.

Guarded by a Network of Devices to Insure Their Safety.

From the moment a depositor lines up before the receiving teller's window of a bank and lays his bills on the counter until he again receives back his money from the paying teller his deposit has been surrounded by a network of devices to insure its safe keeping. It has been subjected to the rigid banking laws of the state or nation, to a guardianship by a host of public officials, by steel and by time locks, by the vigilance of the bank officials and the surveillance of bonding companies.

And yet in spite of this constant effort, though the depositor rarely loses himself, sometimes his money mysteriously disappears, and until the guilty person is detected the shadow of a doubt hangs over the personnel of that bank, from the office boy to the president. Such, however, is the system of vigilance by which the public through agents of the law guards funds on deposit that it is only rarely that the money so taken is not recovered.

The marvel is not that men daily, hourly, tempted with opportunities to purloin the wealth which passes through their fingers sometimes yield to this temptation, but that the percentage of loss from theft which the banks of the country sustain is not greater than it is. Indeed, so unusual is the occurrence of a theft by a member of the bank's personnel that when such is the case the bank's nervous organization is thrown out of equilibrium. The bank as a bank never rests until the theft is uncovered and the guilty man is made to reimburse the cash taken.—William Buckley in Leslie's.

Three Stars.

It was Lole Fuller, the famous dancer, who introduced Dumas the younger to Flammarion when they met in her dressing room at the Athenaeum. She tells of it in "Fifteen Years of a Dancer's Life."

"Is it possible that the two most distinguished personalities in Paris are not acquainted with each other?" she said. "It is not so remarkable," replied Dumas, "for you see Flammarion dwells in space, and I am just a cumber of the earth." "Yes," said Flammarion, "but a little star came out of the west has brought us together."

Dogs and Their Food.

Dogs growl when you touch their food, even in play, because the dog was originally a ferocious animal, like the wolf, and self preservation by way of food is his foremost and all pervading instinct. Only dogs that are so near humankind that they understand practical jokes allow their master to take away their food. They will never allow another dog to do so unless living in abject fear of the robber.—Boston Herald.

His View of Nature.

Huxley was once talking to Sir William Gull about the healing power of nature. "Stuff!" said Gull. "Nine times out of ten nature does not want to cure the man. She wants to put him in his coffin."

A CELEBRATED SCOOP.

George Gregg Was Late and Got News of D'Arcy McGee Murder.

It is just forty-five years ago that the late Hon. D'Arcy McGee was assassinated on Sparks street, Ottawa, on the spot where now stands the departmental store of Bryson, Graham & Co., and although there has been talk year after year in regard to erecting a suitable memorial to the renowned Irish-Canadian orator, statesman and patriot, it looks as if another session of the House will elapse and nothing be done in this direction. In the Reference Library on College street, Toronto, files of The Leader of April 7, 1868, may be found. The edition of that date contained one of the greatest scoops ever recorded in the annals of Canadian journalism, and yet this exclusive news item was printed under modest single column, head lines. How different would be the display to-day, when even the closure measure commands a caption four and five columns wide, in type an inch or more deep. Dr. George H. Locke, Chief Librarian, regards this file of The Leader as among the most historic possessions in the library. The stirring tragedy of McGee's death, who was shot down just as he was entering his boarding-house, and whose body was found, lifeless, on the pavement, occurred shortly after two o'clock in the morning. The noted Parliamentarian had just finished a brilliant two-hour speech in the Commons upon the Nova Scotia question, in which he had uttered the loftiest sentiment of loyalty to the crown and devotion to the country. He had expressed the hope that the deep sense of loyalty of the people of that province would induce them to forsake their attitude of hostility and unite with the rest of the provinces in building up a Canadian nationality. The newspaper man, who scored the great beat on McGee's lamentable death, was the late George Gregg, who was then Ottawa correspondent for The Leader. That paper, which was published until about 1875, was issued on Leader Lane on the very spot where the Leader Hotel now stands on King street east, Toronto. The assassination occurred after the House had adjourned. It had been a busy night for the representatives in the Parliamentary Press Gallery, and, after completing their work, all "the boys" had departed and were in bed when the murder took place. Gregg was the only one to remain. He was a little late in finishing his report and was on his way to his home when, on reaching Sparks street, he heard of the shooting. Not another paper in Toronto or Canada contained a line that morning regarding the terrible tragedy except The Leader, and thus was recorded one of the greatest scoops ever pulled off in Canada. George Gregg, the man who tallied in that great news story, died himself a few years later under sad circumstances. He was an enthusiastic curler and, while engaged in the game, caught a cold which developed into pneumonia, and he passed away after only a few days' illness. He was at the time on the staff of The Toronto Mail, of which he was one of the founders.

One Hundred Francs.

McGillivray Knowles one of our well-known Canadian painters, tells an amusing story of a curious artist character, Stettler, from Belgium, whom he met in Paris. This artist was always hard up. He asked Knowles for a loan of a hundred francs, which he was to pay back in a month. He got the money and at the appointed time paid it back. In two days back he came again. "M'sieu Knowles, I should lak to borrow from you one hundred francs, eh?"

"All right. Here it is."

Another month and the money was paid back. As promptly the request came again:

"One hundred francs, please to oblige, M'sieu Knowles?"

For a whole year Stettler kept on borrowing and paying back the hundred francs. When Knowles left Paris he was obliged to terminate the arrangement, but said:

"Look here, Stettler, if you want to keep that last hundred francs a while longer, do so, and send it to me when you make good."

"Ah, M'sieu Knowles, I must pay it now. I nevere make good. I was behind once one hundred francs. I have nevere caught up. Merci!"

Donates Scholarship.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., has announced that he will give two scholarships in McGill University, Montreal, to be competed for by apprentices on the permanent staff of the road under 21 years of age by minor sons of employees. The scholarships will be four years' tuition in the faculty of applied science of that university. The two candidates making the highest marks on the regular entrance matriculation examination of the university will be awarded the scholarships. The forms for this examination will be distributed throughout the Dominion to those entering the competition, which is to be held in June.

The Poor Poets.

"Poets are born, sir," said the bard to the editor. "Yes, I know they weren't hatched from duck eggs," answered the editor. "But the question is, Why are they born?"

FOUR TIMES PREMIER

DEATH OF SIR GORDON SPRIGG A LOSS TO SOUTH AFRICA.

Veteran Statesman Who Went To the Dark Continent in Search of Health and Entered Politics—Was Prime Minister of Cape Colony on Four Occasions and Saw Two Wars In That Country.

South Africa, in the recent death of Sir Gordon Sprigg, mourns a statesman who had played a distinguished part in the public life of the country. Sir Gordon was Premier of Cape Colony on no fewer than four occasions. Born in Ipswich in 1830, the son of a Baptist minister, he began life in London as a journalist, and was a Parliamentary reporter and contributor to various newspapers. When twenty-eight his health broke down, and, like Cecil Rhodes, he went to South Africa in search of health. So ill was he when he left England that he had to be carried on the ship. Becoming a farmer, he soon became the possessor of great herds of cattle and sheep. The settler was drawn into politics, and eleven years after his arrival he was elected to the Cape House of Assembly. He quickly came to the front, and a decade later was made Premier. During his first term of office the Basuto war occurred, and

SIR GORDON SPRIGG.

Sir Gordon did his best to bring it to a successful conclusion. He worked energetically in raising scratch volunteer regiments and he was to be seen standing on the bridge of coasting vessels, addressing in magniloquent terms the very mixed body of recruits. During the Boer War Sir Gordon, as Premier and Treasurer of Cape Colony, had a difficult task. This was followed by, perhaps, the most momentous campaign of his career. A movement was started at the close of the war for the suspension of the Constitution of the Colony. It rapidly gained powerful support, and became the all-absorbing political topic of South Africa. Sir Gordon Sprigg and some of his colleagues vigorously opposed the proposal, in the face of much hostility, until eventually Mr. Chamberlain, as Colonial Secretary, gave his decision against the suspension. Nevertheless, in the General Election of 1904, Sir Gordon was defeated by Dr. Smarrt at East London by a majority of 954, and the Progressives winning the election, Dr. Jameson formed the new Ministry. Sir Gordon attributed his physical and nervous strength chiefly to the fact that he was Suffolk-born.

Radium and Photography.

The alpha and beta rays of radium, the positive and negative particles into which the atom breaks up, are now studied by photography. The process has been developed in recent months by C. T. R. Wilson, and was illustrated by Prof. W. H. Bragg, at the last meeting of the British Association.

The bit of radium is held in a short glass cylinder six inches in diameter, one end of which is closed with a glass plate, while a movable piston is fitted into the other. The chamber being filled with moist air, the piston is drawn outward, when the sudden expansion cools the moisture, and a fog is formed that settles on the "ions" that are left as trails of any alpha and beta rays.

By illuminating the fog and photographing it, a picture showing the path of the rays is obtained.

To the amazingly long list of articles made of paper there may be added paper cannon, which have been manufactured at the Krupp works in Germany. These paper field pieces are for special use of the infantry. Their caliber is a little less than two inches, and the pieces are so light that a soldier can easily carry one. But the resistance is greater than that of a field piece of steel of the same caliber. It is not to be understood that these paper guns are in any way to replace those made of steel. The paper arms are intended merely for uses in situations where the movement of field artillery would be impracticable. Paper artillery on the field of battle seems an extraordinary thing, but it is hardly more so than paper wheels for freight cars on railway appeared when they were first introduced or, for that matter, than paper water balls were.—New York Tribune.

Smuggling in Chinese

Dangerous passes in the Rocky mountains are being used to smuggle Chinese from the province of British Columbia into the states of Washington, Idaho and Montana, according to A. T. Lunney, connected with the immigration department of the state of Washington, who was in Edmonton on official business a few days ago. These passes, he said, are wild and unfrequented and offer every facility for smugglers to outwit the customs officials. He added that Chinese are taken in automobiles and landed with in walking distance of a remote railway station on the American side at a certain price per head. The traffic was flourishing a few years ago, he continued, but was finally broken up. Now, however, the smugglers appear to have found a new means of continuing their work, and as a result many orientals are coming into the states.

STRUGGLE WITH FIVE LEOPARDS

Officers of Storm-Tossed Freighter Lasso Animals Released by Lightning

While a terrific storm raged about them, tossing their big freighter about like a cork in the ocean, six officers of the German steamship Rheinfels, which arrived recently in Philadelphia from Calcutta, battled for five hours before they succeeded in subduing five frenzied leopards which had escaped from their cages.

During the storm all hands had been ordered on deck by Capt. Albert Kuckens, and when lightning struck the poop deck it knocked the leopard cages down in the midst of the 48 men.

With a scream of fight the men took to the rigging, kicking, cursing and fighting in an effort to climb to a place of safety. In an instant only the six officers were left on deck. One stoker, seized by fear when he saw the loose leopards, leaped into the sea and was drowned.

Around and around the battered-decked quintet of leopards raced, paying little attention to the group of six men crouched in one corner. All the deck load had been washed into the sea, giving the beast sample room to romp and run. After an hour the leopards sighted the men and stationed themselves in front of them, evidently intending to wait until the storm abated to advance on them.

But the officers thought otherwise. One crawled from the group on his hands and knees to his room, procured a rope and returned. Suddenly he threw the rope across the leopards, seated on their haunches a few feet away. Unprepared for the movement, two of the beasts were caught and made fast. Other ropes were secured, but it was not until three hours later that the last of the leopards was captured and placed in another cage.

In the same cargo of wild beasts were two giraffes and two antelopes. Their cages were shattered, but they remained quietly on the poop deck and watched the fight.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

What do you want? demanded Mr. Newlywed, as he confronted the tramp at the door of the bungalow, breakfast or work?

Both, sir, replied the wayfarer, timidly.

Well eat that, returned the other savagely, handing out a biscuit and a piece of steak, and you'll have both.

Whereupon Mrs. Newlywed glanced reproachfully at her husband, for he was giving away the first fruits of her culinary studies at the cooking school.

It is Wise to Prevent Disorder.—Many causes lead to disorders of the stomach and few are free from them. FIRE IN STOVE 70 YEARS

Primitive Cooking Apparatus in Cornwall, England

Incredible as it may seem to us who have at our command every sort of labor saving machine and device that it is possible to conceive, there are some parts of the world—and not the most remote, either—where many of the ordinary tasks of life are accomplished in almost identically the same way that they were centuries ago, says a writer in Gas Logic. Travelers in foreign countries have frequently told of surprising instances of this kind which they have met with in their wanderings in out-of-the-way localities.

A striking illustration of the way in which people who come little into contact with modern methods often-times cling to ancient and cumbersome ways of doing things is afforded by the case of a farmer in Cornwall, England, whose primitive and picturesque cooking apparatus has attracted attention.

The fuel used in the stove is neither coal nor wood, but peat. No other fuel has been burned in it. The Cornish farmer declares that to his knowledge the fire in it has not been out in seventy years.

When the farmer's family have any cooking to do, the embers are first raked flat, and an iron plate is placed over them. The dough is then put into a tin, which is placed upon the iron plate, the tin being covered over with a big iron pot. The whole is covered with embers and in eighty minutes' time, it is said, the bread is perfectly baked.

An Irish member of parliament is telling a story of a man who complained to three friends—an Englishman, a Scotchman, and an Irishman—that his servant was constantly breaking china.

What do you think I ought to do with her? he asked plaintively.

The practical Englishman said: Dismiss her! But as she was otherwise an excellent servant her master was unwilling to do that.

Then take it out of her wages, suggested the thrifty Scot.

That wouldn't do much good was the reply, for her wages are less than the amount of damage she does.

Then raise her wages! said the Irishman promptly.

TOLD BY HIS TEETH

Teethmarks More Reliable in Crime Detection than Finger Prints

The case of the burglar who was recently identified in Paris by the marks of his teeth in some fruit he had bitten and left behind, led a London dentist to comment on the value of the teeth and palate for purposes of identification. It recalls, too, the researches of Dr. Paul Prague, of Vienna, who more than five years ago declared that a long series of experiments demonstrated that the palate never changes from childhood to old age, and that identification by this means is even more certain than by means of finger-prints.

The gums and palate, said the dentist referred to, are an infallible test of identity. No matter how a person changes in facial expression and in general appearance, the gums and palate remain to assure him and others that his identity is the same. The sooner this fact is realized the better, for one can state no limit to its usefulness. Here is a case that came directly under my own notice.

A man of considerable wealth and of high social standing went on a tour to Africa. He disappeared, and though every effort was made to trace him he could not be found. Meanwhile difficulties arose concerning the disposition of his property. There was no evidence of his death, and presumption of death was refused by the court.

Reports arrived later to the effect that he had been murdered by natives and it was stated that his body had been buried in an African village. As it happened, I had made the man a set of teeth and still retained the cast of the mouth. The man's brother went out, returned with the skull and I found that the cast I had taken fitted the mouth of the dead man. That was sufficient. The death was presumed, and the estate duly administered.

The palate test is infallible, and should be used by our detectives. A cast of the mouth of every criminal could easily be taken, and would prove more effective and reliable than the much-vaunted finger-print system.

Hogan's Clock

The frequent and unsuccessful candidacy of certain men for public office reminded George Dore of a story of his old friend Hogan.

Hogan was raffling a clock, said Mr. Dore. He was fairly successful in disposing of tickets in the shop where he worked, but he ran up against trouble when he canvassed the neighbors.

Dropping in at a neighbor's home he tried to sell a ticket on the clock. It's a fine timepiece and it'll look fine on yer what-not or mantel, says Hogan, cajolingly.

Gwan, the old clock doesn't run, replied the neighbor.

Well, drawled Hogan, changing front completely, well, perhaps yez won't win it, and then ye'll have the laugh on the fellow who does.

At a dinner given by the prime minister of a little kingdom on the Balkan Peninsula a diplomat complained to his host that the minister of justice, who had been sitting on his left, had stolen his watch.

Ah, he shouldn't have done that, said the prime minister, in tones of annoyance. I will get it back for you. Sure enough, toward the end of the evening the watch was returned to its owner.

And what did he say? asked the diplomat. Sh-h! cautioned the host, glancing anxiously about him. He doesn't know that I have got it back.

It's really a pleasure to observe how willingly your little boy runs your errands.

Oh, he's the boy that lives next door. I get him to do my errands because my own boy won't.

Well, what is your boy doing now? He's running an errand for the lady next door.

Whistling for a Living

A novel industry has been brought to light by the news that a man who in taking 450 British song birds to British Columbia is an expert bird whistler. It appears that it is no uncommon thing for a man who keeps a bird fancier's shop to be able to whistle a distinct series of bird notes. At the beginning of each series says The Daily Citizen, describing the work of the professional bird-whistler, the different feathered tribes whose cages completely covered the walls took up the lay, piping as if their little hearts would break with joy. When the linnet ceased the canaries, hearing the notes of the man-whistler, broke into full-throated song. Then when the expert started to whistle skylark notes the imprisoned songsters of the heavens forgot their captivity and gave the sun, peeping shyly in between the closed blinds, a melodious welcome.

It appears that when a bird is caught and put into a cage it is very apt to sulk and become miserable, this is where the bird-whistler comes in useful. He imitates the tones of whatever kind of bird this one happens to be, and the little prisoner, thinking it has company, forgets all his troubles and breaks into a song of joy.

Sometimes the bird-whistler can teach one bird another bird's song. One man taught a goldfinch to sing like a linnet and a linnet to sing like a goldfinch.

Why He Didn't Understand 'Em
That woman snubbed me deliberately.

Perhaps she didn't see you.
Of course she did. Didn't I have on my new suit, nad my $30 bonnet? No woman in the world could pass by without seeing that.

Reduce the Cost of Living
There must be a prohibitive tariff on moving vans.

What a silly idea.
Not at all, I just tried to hire one, and the cost of moving has almost trebled.

A Long Felt Want

He's invented a waterproof bread for lettuce sandwiches.

Oil engine propulsion for ocean going vessels has reached so successful a stage that a $5,000,000 company has been organized in London to operate lines of freight ships of that type.

Choked for Air. Some little irritant becomes lodged in the bronchial tubes, others gather, and the awful choking of asthma results. Nothing offers quite such quick and positive relief as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. The healing, soothing smoke or vapor penetrates, clears the passages and gives untold relief. Usually it completely cures. It has behind it years of success. It is the sure remedy for every sufferer.

Mayor Rockwell of Akron was condemning the claim often put forward by the rich, that poverty is good for the character.

Poverty is good for nobody, he said. It embitters the mind, hardens the heart, causes unhappiness and fear and suffering.

There's nothing like adversity, a millionaire once said to me—there's nothing like adversity to bring a man out.

Yes, I replied, out at the elbows.

Didsbury Loses Shield

The final game at Innisfail between Red Deer and Didsbury which resulted in a win for the former by three goals to one was not a very exciting affair on account of the high wind storm which was prevailing at the time.

The first goal was made by Red Deer from a foul near the local's net. Before the interval Owens evened matters up.

In the second half Red Deer had the advantage and on several occasions it seemed as though they were going to have a dozen counters, but their forwards were miserably weak on certain occasions. In this half Red Deer placed two more in the net, giving them the game.

In the evening "The Snell Shield" was presented to Red Deer by Mr. Wilson the president of the league.

Medal Contest

A medal contest under the auspices of the Y. W. C. T. U. will be held in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening, August 1st, at 8.30. Six young ladies from Olds will be down to compete for the silver medal. A good musical programme is being gotten up and it is expected that a very enjoyable time will be spent. Admission, adults 25c, children 15c.

A Good Answer

The other day a class of little girls were being given an object lesson on the cow. After asking many questions about that animal, the teacher ultimately asked:—

"Now can anyone tell me the use of the cow's skin?"

A brief silence followed, and then a hand shot up in the middle of the class.

"Well, Mary," said the teacher, indicating the little girl whose hand was up.

"Please, ma'am, to keep the beef in," was Mary's somewhat unique reply.—A. B. G., Aberdeen.
